

The workshop

The Blankensee workshop will explore linkages between studies of socio-technical change and governance. The objective is to foster exchange and understanding between the two research perspectives. Such encounters can generate new insight into the dynamics of the policy process as it interacts with socio-technical change. A consequence, hopefully, will be more politically robust approaches to shaping sustainable socio-technical transitions. The workshop's core themes are:

- Agency & Power: political contests over system innovations
- Participation & Legitimacy: cognitive and ethical orientation for system innovations
- Institutions & Change: conditions of political reform for system innovations

Full draft papers must be made available for circulation among workshop participants by 31 August 2007. Participants are expected to read all papers before the workshop.

The workshop is part of a series of three workshops entitled "System innovations for sustainable development" (see separate flyer attached below) and is endorsed by the working group "Politics & Technology" of the German Association for Political Science (DVPW). The workshop series is funded by the German research ministry's programme "Socio-Ecological Research", the Dutch Ministry for Housing, Spatial Planning and Environment as well as by the Dutch "Knowledge Network for System Innovations and Transitions" (KSI).

How to get there

From Tegel Airport, take local Bus "TXL" to Berlin Central Station (Hauptbahnhof) (20 min). From Schönefeld Airport, take regional express or metro (S-Bahn) to Berlin Central Station (Hauptbahnhof) (ca. 30 min). At Central Station, change to regional express (RE 5 to Falkenberg or Lutherstadt Wittenberg, departure every hour) to Trebbin (35 min). You can find a trip planner at www.vbb-fahrinfo.de

Train tickets through to Trebbin are available at the airport or station (3,60 €) at the ticket counters of all public transportation companies (including S-Bahn) and the ticket machines of BVG or DB. You can also purchase a BVG-ticket to Central Station (Zone A-B) and get a train ticket there.

For journey by car, see www.schloss-blankensee.de

Accommodation

Participants will either stay in Schloss Blankensee or in the nearby hotels "Park Hotel Trebbin" or "Zur Rose" (see accommodation list attached). For participants staying at the Schloss, taxi transfer will be organised from Trebbin Station. For participants staying at the other hotels (each in walking distance from Trebbin Station), a shuttle service will be organised to the Schloss where the workshop takes place. All participants are asked to let us (s.leukert@oeko.de) know by 6 Sept. when exactly they are due to arrive at Trebbin.
